Today this very serious medical condition is called bipolar disorder, and there can be a genetic connection. But in children, bipolar disorder is notdiagnosed very often. It can resemble attention deficit hyperactivity disorder or other conditions However, there's nothing subtle about the warning signs in kids with bipolar disorder, believe me, they exhibit extreme hyperactivity, including non-stop talking. They don't seem to need much sleep, and show an energy level significantly beyond normal. These symptoms may combine with mood swings, irritability, sadness, or thoughts of death. Bipolar disorder is a medical condition like high blood pressure. A physician must make the diagnosis and prescribe medication and therapy. If you have concerns about your child's behavior, call us now or anytime. There's always a counselor standing by to talk to you.

Thank goodness for whistle-blowers

Thank goodness we have a few of them emerging in Mississippi, opening up some dark corners where taxpayers' money has gone that people wouldn't know about if some folks hadn't blown the whistle.

The latest whistle blast has come from former Jackson TV executive ing across the highway on all years crusaded on his own against the drug trade, and now is doing so for the state.

> "Somebody ought to go to jail," said a fuming Melton, "and if this thing leads all the way to Trent Lott, I say let the chips fall where they may."

Robbie Maxwell, who formerly worked for Lott in his Gulfport office and has since been boosted by Lott to a job as head the U.S. Justice Department's Police Corps program, is the key figure in implementing the MBN aircraft deal.

Significantly, Maxwell also figures in another probe by an Air Force Inspector General into indigenous corruption in a Meridian-Based Mississippi Air National Guard unit, arising from allegations including operation of an illicit liquor business to the unit's sone black pilot being forced to resign amid racial Maxwell, who Lott once planned to make sergeantat-arms of the U.S. Senate, is reportedly shown in documents to have been the recipient of a specially-modified $1000 Air Force pilot's headset for his personal use in learning to fly a Narcotics Bureau airplane that had been transferred from the Meridian base to Hancock County.

Allegations in the Meridian Air Guard probe, which already have resulted in the commanding officer and several top officers of the targeted unit resigning under pressure, arose from an ex-Air Guard officer blowing the whistle more than two years ago on corrupt practices happening inside the unit.

Col. Jody Bryant, formerly with the 186th Air Refueling Wing, which is the prime target of the probe, had over two years documented several dozen complaints that ings to Emmanuel. have now been turned over to federal investigators.

Bryant's charges of corruption at the Meridian base had been brushed off by former acting Mississippi Adjutant General George Walker in 2000, and resulted in Bryant being booted out of the Air Guard for raising the allegations.

Now a commercial pilot for FEDEX, and a colonel in the Army reserve, Bryant, 51, finally persuaded the present Adjutant General, James Lipscomb, last year to forward the charges he raised to the Air Force Inspector General's office. An AIG report in December found a number of violations by the 186th top officers including the racial incident, plus falsified reports.

Recently, a follow-up probe of corruption at the Meridian Air Guard base was launched at Gen. Lipscomb's request, to be headed by Col. Ken Emmanuel, a staff-judge advocate for the Florida Air National Guard. MNB Director Melton has also turned over the Narcotic bureau investigator's find-endowment $125,000 was established recently at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast to fund The Mary Loraine Peets Buffett Endowed Freshman Scholarship.

Anticipated to be awarded by fall 2004, the scholarship will be based on academic merit and financial need to a female student from the Mississippi Gulf Coast who is entering USMGC. The annual scholarship will provide tuition and books. Along with maintaining a 3.0 grade point average, the student will be required to write a 250-word essay demonstrating creative writing

"Peets," as family and friends know her, is a 1940 graduate of the Gulf Park College for Women.

The Gulf Park College for Women was in operation from 1917 until 1971. USM Gulf Coast acquired the campus in 1972. The scholarship is now possible at USM Gulf Coast since it expanded to offer freshman and sophomore courses.

"As we grow our Gulf Park campus, it will be vital that we have scholarships of this nature that give Southern Miss a better ability to attract top quality students to our coast cam-Southern Miss pus." Shelby President Dr. Thames said. "We appreciate this gift and hope that this scholarship will be one of many to follow for our-Gulf Park students."

The initial study reports that the DuPont DeLisle plant is routinely monitored by the DEQ. Two natural barriers of shale, chalk and saline aquifers prevent the iron chloride solution injected into deep wells from migrating to water wells, the report concludes.

In 1995, groundwater contamination by heavy metals and solvents were found in a shallow aquifer under the plant, the report continues, but tests indicated that contamination had not moved beyond the plant site. ATSDR concluded that the contamination found in shallow wells on the site

The plant reports almost 15 million pounds of toxic releases each year.

Plant officials say toxic releases are not polluting surrounding areas.

Lott cuts ribbon for new hangar at Stennis

cut by Mississippi Senator Trent Lott today to mark the opening of an aircraft hangar, at the Stennis International Airport in Hancock" County, Mississippi, that will be used to modify C-130 airplanes. John Salter, Vice President of Operations for Memphis International, said that the company planned to retro-fit existing C-130's with state-of-the-art electronic equipment that will add new capabilities to this workhorse of U.S. and allied air forces.

Memphis International, under contract with defense contractor Rockwell Collins, will initially work on military aircraft with future modifications on commercial and corporate aircraft.

The Hancock County Port number and Harbor Commission, the county's economic development arm, announced late last year that Stennis Airport had been selected by Memphis International. John Salter, Vice President of Operations, for the company, said that Stennis was selected because of the availability of an existing aircraft hangar, the 8,500' runway, the instrument landing system, and the ability of the area workforce to support this type of aviation work.

The first aircraft will arrive in June, after modifications to existing hangar facilities have been completplans calling for retrofit ed. The initial workforce will number approximately 25 individuals, with this expected , to increase as the company secures additional contracts.

Hal Walters, Executive Director of the Port and Harbor Commission, the agency that oversees the operation of Stennis Airport and the Port Bienville Industrial Park, stated that Memphis International is the type of company, carrying out the type of activity, that the Commission has Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, which was established over 50 years ago, has recently been joined by two new theater companies -The Olde Towne Players and Court. St. Cabaret.

Bay native exports his passion for football

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Staff Writer

ay St. Louis native Shannon Garrett will Shannon Garren, soon leave the warm, sunny days of the Mississippi Gulf Coast for the cooler lands of the northin Canada.

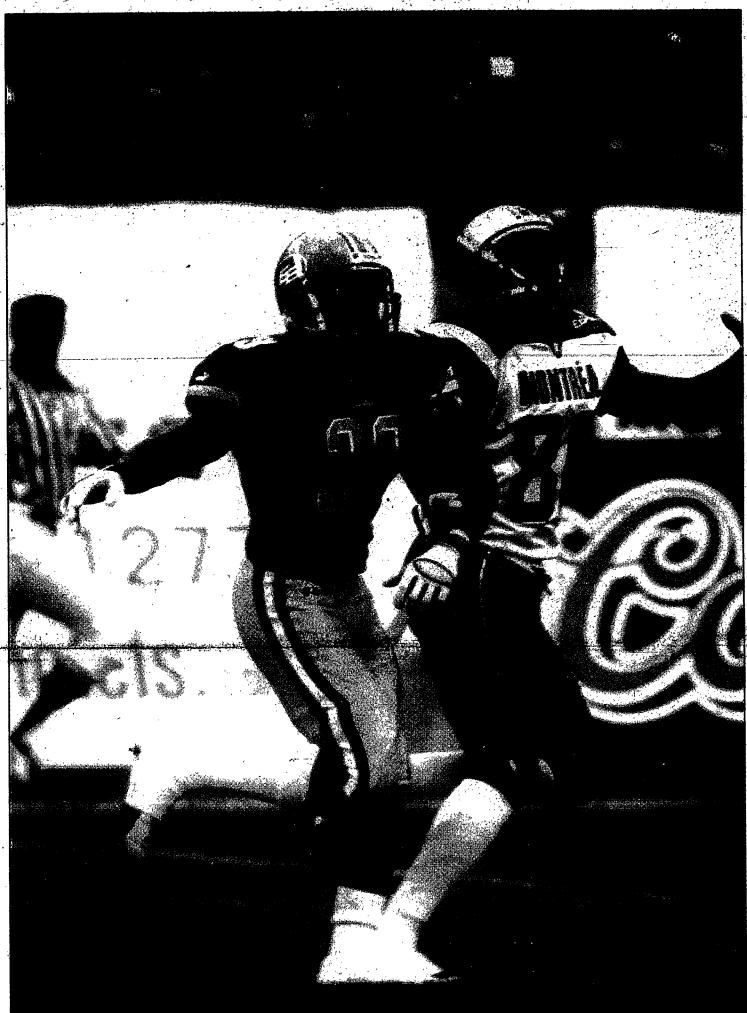

For the past eight years, Garrett has been making this annual trek to Canada to play football in the Canadian Football League simply because he loves the game. He will suit up for the Edmonton Eskimos at defensive back in 2003. This will be his third season in Edmonton after stops with the Winningeg Blue Bombers and the Saskatchewan Rough Riders.

Garrett was born and raised in Bay St. Louis and graduated from Stanislaus College in 1990 after a stellar athletic career that virtually went unnoticed.

He was a four-year letter winner in football, basketball and track for the Rocka-chaws. While competing on the gridiron for SSC, Garrett played a variety of positions including quarterback, wide receiver, running back, and defensive back. Although, Garrett will admit that defensive back was not a regular position for him until college. In fact, one of his first true experiences at defensive back came when there were scouts from Mississippi State and USM in the stands.

Garrett recalls, "They wanted to see myself and another recruit, Mark Montgomery from Pearl River, go head-to-head in the game. So, I suited up at defensive back which was a relatively new position for me. Well, Montgomery had the game of his career against me. He went on and played at USM and that his competitors. His quickended my recruiting from USM and Mississippi State."

However, that didn't stop Garrett from continuing to compete in the game that he loved. The 5-10, 205-pound defensive back always kept working. He made sure that he outpracticed, outperformed, and outplayed all ness and footwork have kept him in the game this long. Garrett said that he runs a 4.5 in the 40-yard dash.

He was also a star on the basketball court for Coach Chuck Genin's Rock-achaws. Garrett earned All-Division as a small forward on the hardcourt and had a scholarship offer to play at Pearl River. Later on, Springhill College of Mobile showed some interest in the hard-nosed player from Bay St. Louis: Garrett was also peting in the 200m dash and with the record-setting 400m relay team. Other events in track that Garrett competed in was the 100m dash and the 800m relay.

Garrett's recognition was somewhat clouded by playing at a small school in St. Stanislaus. But, that didn't stop him from promoting a state finalist in track com- himself by making his own highlight films and sending them out. Garrett had not received much interest from schools for his football talent so he started to concentrate on the hardwood. However, about a week before signing Mississippi College asked him to come to a tryout. Garrett and Coach Ken

Lyons made the trek to Clinton for the tryout and the Choctaws became very interested in Garrett.

The Choctaws signed Garrett to a partial scholarship on signing day. His work on the field and off the field had finally paid off. Garrett stated, "I had always been competitive on the field and off. We had a highly competitive class at SSC. We would push each other on the field and in the classroom. I saw everyone competing and talking about which school they were going to, so I joined

Once at Mississippi College, things moved pretty fast for Garrett. He had to adjust to college life, college classes, going to school with girls, and adjust to quicker game of football at the collegiate level. Mississippi College had just won the Division II national championship and that brought pressure to perform. College classes and making the grades were tougher. Garrett admits that having classes with girls after going through the all-boys regimen at St. Stanislaus was difficult. Garrett recalled, "Coming from SSC, we were taught how to study. I wasn't worried about that aspect. However, I did have to adjust to the pace that we covered the material. Mississippi College was a good fit for me both academcally and athletically. I was able to parlay my success on the field into a free education in the classroom. That is what people need to understand - get the education. It means so much more to you in the long run than your time as an athlete. In the whole scope of life, a career in sports is short-term. Your education carries you much further."

His first year at MC was a redshirt year. His second year as a redshirt freshman, Garrett didn't touch the field. As a sophomore, he got limited action on defense. By his junior seaon, Garrett had won a starting job in the defensive backfield and earned All-Conference honors following the season. With that, the NFL scouts came looking and he made the NFL's list of potential players as a senior. By making that list Garrett stated that scouts were at every practice. He stated, "I never really thought about a professional career in football. I was always trying to decide what I was going to do with my life after college football was over."

During his senior season, Garrett broke his hand and he didn't perform well at the NFL Combine. In the end, Garrett was not drafted but the Canadian Football League came calling. bit different than the American game. The field is bigger measuring 65 yards wide and 120 yards long. There are only three downs instead of four. There are only 40 roster players and no practice squad as opposed to the NFL roster limit of 58 plus a practice squad. There must be 19 Canadians on each team and 11 have to start. That is called the American-Canadian ratio. Anyone lined up behind the quarterback has the opportunity to hit the line of scrimmage at full speed. That makes a big difference for a defensive back covering the receivers, especially when the Canadian game is dominated by the passing game. "The Canadian game is a much faster game. The players. may not be as physical as they are in the NFL but they are definitely as quick, or even quicker. I like to refer to it as a track meet on a football field. There has to be knowledge of the game, quickness, and great footwork to be successful in this league. Just because someone has played in the NFL come in and play in the CFL. I have seen numerous The game in Canada is a players that played in the NFL fail in the CFL."

Garrett ended up making thé roster his rookie year and played another two seasons in Winnipeg. However, when he wasn't playing in Canada, Garrett was at home in Bay St: Louis.

He wanted to use his degree and began searching out employment opportunities on the Coast while he was home. Garrett visited Peoples Bank and dropped off a resume. He was invited to interview but was turned down in the interview because he was only home for six months. Then, a strange thing happened. According to Garrett, Chevis Swetman, president of Peoples Bank, was having a conversation with employees and the topic turned to sports and having a local sports personality on staff. One of the employees handed Swetman a Garrett called in for a second interview and the rest is history. Garrett remembered, "I was kind of down about the first interview. But, I had some of my football cards and I wanted to bring them by to some of the people at the bank that I had known for some time. It turns out that annual Christmas party soon and that is when my name and card made its way to Mr. Swetman. I am for understanding and allowing me to play the game I love for six months out of the year and holding my job for me. I have the best of both worlds. I am able to compete in the game that I love and continue my work at the bank when I am not playing." Garrett signed with Saskatchewan after he was released by Winningeg. He played there for two seasons before signing with the New Orleans Saints. While in New Orleans, Garrett made it all the way to final cut. at a position where one of their high draft choices memories of football was in tion game, he missed two checks that resulted in first football card. Garrett was downs. Those two missed beaten them in about six checks, coupled with the years. Saints' high draft choice, ended up costing Garrett a shot at the roster. However. he made his way back to Canada and signed with the Eskimos. Last season, Garrett and his teammates played in Canada's version of the super bowl - the Grey they were having their Cup. The Eskimos lost to the Montreal Alouettes but it was a feeling he will never forget. Garrett said, "It is defivery appreciative of Peoples nitely the highlight of my Bank and Chevis Swetman career. The game was great. But, there are distractions surrounding the game. It seemed like we were always doing interviews and going here and there. That was the only drawback. But, just being in the game was awesome."

In about three weeks, Garrett will make his annual trek to the north. He has come to grips that he is in the twilight of his sensational career. It was a career that has taken him from the city streets of small-town Bay St. Louis to the professional ranks of He happened to be playing football. Garrett commented, "One of my most vivid

> "It was a great feeling." There are so many fond memories between that time and the Grey Cup last year. When I leave the game, memories of it will be all I have. I am not Michael Jordan, so there will not be any comebacks. I try to make the most of my time when I am up there. I see all that I can see because I am not sure if I will ever get back there again. On our days off, I drive out to the mountains and take in those sights. We don't have mountains in Mississippi. I am trying to make the most of my experience."

Despite his busy schedule, Garrett always finds time to speak with young people about what has made him a success. He replied, "I always ask the young people, What do you want to do with your life?' answer is always to be a professional athlete when they find out that I am one. I try to impress upon them to keep reaching for that dream but not to neglect other things such as their education. There is no such thing as a dumb jock.

Athletes have to study as hard as anyone at their job. That is what professional athletics is -a job. It is simple. If you don't perform, then you are let go and replaced. That is the same in everyday life. I tell them to get the education first and not worry about what other people say. Making it to the professional level of athletics is like hitting the lottery because only a small percentage of athletes make it that far. I have been fortunate. Maybe it is fate or luck, I don't know. I am always working to outperform someone else because I can get cut at any time."

While football has taken him from small-town Bay St. Louis to Clinton to Canada, Garrett has remained grounded to his roots in Mississippi. He makes his home here on the Gulf Coast where he grew up. He works with a native Coast business. He continues to work hard in everything that he does. When Shannon looks back over his life in football, he sees a game that he loved in high school. That game he loved became somewhat of a job to continue playing in college. Now, it has evolved into strictly a job. But, he still loves the game.

Bill Lawler lived in Houston, Texas all his life. In 1994, a bachelor, he visited the Mississippi Gulf Coast. That weekend he hit it lucky at the casino and never looked back. He decided to make an investment in the area and started a beach business. This business gave him time to think about his next investment – the restaurant business. Bill began cooking at the age of 12. Throughout his life, friends and family encouraged him to open his own restaurant. His love for entertaining made him a natural in the business.

Bill admits he had no clue what he was getting himself into. What he did know was what people like -- good service, consistent food and friendly faces.

This philosophy is what

Hancock Plaza

A few years ago, the only businesses in the Kiln were a couple of convenience stores. Today, this stretch along Highway 603, is home to many small businesses and these numbers are growing. Football great Brett Favre literally put the Kiln on the map. The population in this area has exploded with a 60 percent growth rate in the past decade. And, it has long been home to Stennis International Airport and the Hancock County School District. A good part of this growth is due to leadership.

Leadership provided by people like Lauly and Jerry Peterson. The Hancock Chamber County Commerce proudly recognizes Hancock Plaza as Kiln Area Business of the Year

Lauly and Jerry Peterson moved here in the 1960s. She was from California and he was from Mobile. And, while Jerry's duty in the service took them to other places, they kept finding themselves and their four children drawn back to Hancock County.

Cable for 23 years and Gerry worked for Martin Marietta for 12 years.

In 1993, they purchased property in the Kiln and wanted to develop it commercially. They wanted to build something the Kiln would be proud of. To begin the process, they donated a piece of property to the U.S. Postal Service. Later, a piece of property was sold to Dollar General Store. In 1999, they purchased a Kiln business, Statewide Insurance. Each year, sales have doubled and continued growth is expected.

In 2000, their dream of a first-class retail development became reality when Hancock Bank and Hancock Medical Center agreed to establish services at what is now known as Hancock Plaza.

Today, they are working on Phase II of the development. Lauly and Gerry believe that as citizens we have to do more than just love our children and want them to stay in Hancock County.

They believe it is important to become actively involved in building the local economy so that few will have to leave. And, they are doing just that, providing leader-She has worked at Alcan ship through the Hancock Chamber to establish a forum for Kiln Area citizens to work together with public officials to promote positive development.

Tourism works for Hancock County generating new jobs, new business income and new tax revenues. an inaugural award. Bill Lady grew up in Chicago. He has fond memories, traveling with his parents to Florida for vacations. On the way, they always came through Waveland. They found the area so beautiful they invested in beachfront property. On a trip to list their property for sale, they learned that the Waveland Resort Inn would soon be for sale. His father, a hospital administrator, put in a bid on the property, and to his surprise, set the family on a path from tourist to tourism leaders. When Bill was 21 years old, he moved to Waveland. The youngest of three sons---all were involved in the hotel business. Today, Bill is the President of Holiday Inn Waveland. Over the past 27 years, Bill has made a significant impact on the tourism industry in Mississippi, serving in leadership positions at the state and local levels. Locally and statewide, he was a proponent of gaming when many were divided on the issue. But, he stuck with it because he had a vision of the good things gaming could bring to the Hancock County like new jobs, new business income and new tax revenues. Under his leadership, a tourism and gaming association was created in Hancock County to launch a campaign to support gaming in Mississippi. Hancock County led the way for gaming on the Coast, being the first to pass a local referendum. In 1996, he led an effort to establish a tourism development bureau supported by a local room tax. And, when he was tapped to serve as the first President of the newly established bureau, it came as no surprise. He served in the role for five years, providing leadership and expertise to establish a professional tourism marketing program for Hancock County. The accomplishments achieved, working with other members of the community, took time. Through it all, he cites friendships as the biggest joy for him, his wife Patty and their two daughters. Bill says he can think of no greater life than to be a part of the hospitality industry.

Industry of the Year -- Award of Excellence

Mississippi Polymer Technologies Inc.

The Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission is the economic development agency for the County. It operates Port Bienville Industrial Park and the Stennis International Airport. On Friday, commissioners proudly present the Industry of the Year Award to Mississippi Polymer Technologies, Inc.

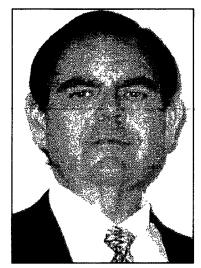

Eight years ago, one man had a vision and made a commitment to invest in the people of Hancock County. His vision was to start a new high tech company.

Holding over 50 patents, this Woodrow Wilson Fellow, National Science Foundation Fellow, Sloan Fellow and Chemistry Ph.D. had already started two other successful companies in California. This new company would be devoted to perfecting and producing one of the strongest and hardest advanced polymers in the world known as Parmax®

SRPs. In 2000, Dr. Robert Gagne made Hancock County home to the world's strongest and hardest polymers through Mississippi Polymer Technologies. If you ask him, he will tell you there are any number of reasons why Hancock County was the right choice for this new enterprise: Strong Congressional support; active involvement of local leaders; and, close proximity to the Department of Polymer Science at the University of Southern Mississippi. MPT is a company that provides high-tech, high-paying jobs for polymer scientists, materials scientists, chemists, chemical engineers, technicians and support staff. Already, the company employs 27 young scientists and technicians who are primarily from Mississippi or educated here. In less than three years, Mississippi Polymer Technologies has become the fastest growing company in the county.

He attributes the company's growing success to his bright, young Mississippi workforce. MPT champions the entrepreneurial spirit vital to economic growth and because of this, the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission is proud to name MPT Industry of the Year.

Linea Peninsular shipping

The Award of Excellence gives the Port & Harbor Commission the opportunity to recognize a Hancock County industry for steady, strong growth. Linea Peninsular typifies this crite-Captain David ria. Humphreys knows the shipping business inside and out. A native Australian, he went to sea at the age of sixteen: Today, he operates one of the top ranking shipping container companies in the world, right here in Hancock County at Port Bienville.

Captain Humphreys started out as a midshipman in the British India Company. He later served as a navigating officer on Canadian Pacific, Trans-Atlantic passenger ships. In 1972, he bought his first ship, made himself the captain, and started a 28 year journey carrying explosives to Central and South America for Atlas Power Company out of Kings Bay, Georgia.

In 1976, he moved his operation to Port Bienville. In 1984, Captain Humphreys, using one of the older Atlas ships, started a weekly service out of Port Bienville to Progreso, Mexico. Initially, the freight between the two ports consisted of sisal twine, then in 1986, Maidenform opened the first maquiladora factory in the Yucatan. Cut fabric was being sent to Yucatan to be sewn, and finished garments were returned to the U.S. This business became a boom, not only to Yucatan, but also to Captain Humphrey's shipping company, Port Bienville, the local truck companies and businesses. In 2000, he terminated the explosive service shipping to focus on the growth of this new segment of the company. Over the years, ships have been bought and sold as the business climate changed. Today, Linea Peninsular operates five vessels, four times a week between Port Bienville and Progreso. In 2002 alone, Linea Peninsular moved more than 41,000 containers between the two ports and ranked forty six among the top one hundred shipping container companies in the

Outstanding Citizens and Citizen of the Year

Hancock County Chamber of Commerce

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is a voluntary organization of business, community and governmental leaders. The mission is to promote the social, civic and economic well being of the County. Today, it is 800 members strong, representing 5,000 employees. They are people who are making a difference for Hancock County. The Hancock Chamber recognizes individuals whose contributions to commerce and the community help make Hancock County prosperous and progressive.

Ethel L.Favre Community Volunteer

At the age of 17, she moved from Ansley to the "city" to take a three-month assignment with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service – an assignment that lasted 50 years. It was 1945, and jobs were few and far between in Bay St. Louis for a young girl with a high school diploma. Yet, Ethel Ladner Favre turned this three-month assignment into a lifetime of service to Hancock County.

In 1987, she was recognized for excellence in service from a field of 400 secretaries statewide, receiving the Outstanding Secretarial Award from the Mississippi Division of Agriculture. One

Jody Compretta Patient's Choice

At 34, he has done what many have not achieved in a lifetime. And, he has only just begun. Many would describe him as a risk taker – a passionate and driven leader – someone who literally lives on the edge. All the while, he is redefining where the edge is. In short, Jody Compretta practices what he preaches. If you don't put something in, he says, you are not going to get anything out of it.

He grew up in Bay St. Louis, the oldest son of Kay and long time State Representative J. P. Representative Compretta. He attributes his work ethic to his parents. When he graduated from college in 1990, unemployment rates were high and jobs non-existent Hancock County for a college graduate with an arts degree. He ended up in Florida, and went to work for Doctor's Choice, a medical supplies and equipment company. Today, 12 years later, he now owns his own company, selling medical equipment and supplies from the patients perspective.

Jody Compretta

He believes he has a mission. To help patients understand they have choices for their medical equipment and supplies.

This philosophy has taken his company to explosive growth. In the second year of operation alone, Patients Choice realized a 540 percent growth. He is an active and staunch supporter of the Hancock Chamber. He believes the Chamber gave him the opportunity to demonstrate that he cares about the growth and success of his community. During 2002, he served as President of the Chamber during a year most would describe as challenging. In December 2001, the Chamber had a total staff turnover. Under Compretta, leadership, volunteers came forward to manage all aspects of Chamber operations. For five months, he served as acting director, while running and expanding his newly established business.

Under his leadership, much was accomplished a new professional director was hired, a new website and software management system was put in place, a new sponsorship program was established, a new golf tournament, partnerships with the media and more. In short, Jody Compretta is a true leader. For Hancock County, he kept the Chamber unified, during a challenging time, to work for common goals.

He facilitated change. He made a difference. And, that's why we recognize Jody Compretta as one of Hancock County's outstanding citizens.

Hancock Volunteer Firefighters

Most volunteer firefighters say they volunteer because they want to help others – others might say it is the opportunity to serve their county and country.

But how many people know that volunteer firefighters are just that - volunteers.

And, they do what they do for no pay. In fact, it costs them money to volunteer--paying for their own red lights and sirens, training, you name it. And, they are on duty twenty-four seven. They are not just risking their lives to save yours, they are helping the community, applying for grants to get better equipment, conducting fire safety in homes and in the schools.

And there's more: Oftentimes, these departments are a hub of activity for the community, serving as a meeting place for local groups and events.

And, they are not just responding to fires. They are called in for car wrecks, train wrecks, search and rescue, and severe weather calls. And, they do it in spite of the fact that it takes them away from their families, friends and work place at all times of the day and night.

In Hancock County, there are eight volunteer fire districts--Clermont Harbor, East Hancock, Kiln, West Hancock, Lee Town, Post #58, Bayside Park, and Fenton. All volunteer – all working to provide safety and fire protection for the people of Hancock County. A few years ago, volunteer fire fighter, Carl Olsen lost his life in the

Kathy Pinn That Cute Little Shoppe

In 1996, when Kathy Pinn and her husband Ron packed up their belongings and moved to Waveland, she knew there was something unique about Waveland.

Originally from New Orleans, she and Ron had raised their five daughters in the country in Illinois. Ron wanted to move south. At first, they moved to Texas and vacationed in Waveland. Every time they came they did not want to leave. At first, she thought it was the physical things, the warm weather, sunshine, beaches. Later, she learned, it is something much more like a peaceful, quality life. Her passion for retail drove her to Coleman Avenue where she opened That Cute Little Shoppe.

When Kathy first opened the store, she noticed there were very few events and promotions for Coleman Avenue. She began meeting informally with some of the merchants to talk about joining together to promote the area.

Through these meetings, the Coleman Coalition was revitalized to develop the Avenue as a place where people would want to come.

As president of the Coleman Coalition, much is being accomplished. The group is taking action to promote Coleman Avenue through beautification programs like Spruce up the Avenue, and promotional events like the Charming Cottages Tour and Wave Fest, now is in its third year. The end result of all of these efforts is increased commerce and a spirit of community involvement.

For Kathy Pinn, it is not about owning a shop. It is about contributing to the greater good of the community. And, because of this, we proudly recognize Kathy Pinn as one of Hancock County's Outstanding Citizens

Ronald G. Magee National Aeronautics & Space Administration

Down to earth with a relaxed leadership style, Ron Magee inspires confidence at work, home and church.

A product of the Bay-Waveland School District, he was valedictorian of his graduating class in 1974.

Beyond high school, his academic achievements focused on the sciences and public administration. All of this would prepare him for a career that would prove to be out of this world in his owp backyard.

Ron Magee is deputy director for the Earth Science Applications Directorate at NASA's Stennis Space Center. Before assuming this position, he was environmental officer for the center for over 12 years.

Ron says he wants to continue to be a good representative of NASA and believes he can accomplish this personally and professionally by giving back to the community. Through the Hancock Chamber, he has found many ways to do just that.

When the chamber began looking at a number of environmental issues, Magee was tapped as chairman of the Community Development Committee. The mission of the committee was to create a nice place for people to live and work.

Clean water and adequate sewer collection were at the top of the list of priorities. The efforts of the committee led to the development of a strategic plan for wastewater in Hancock County.

From there, a comprehensive smart growth plan was devised for Hancock County—one of the first in the state.

This was made possible through a grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Gulf of Mexico Program.

To move the plan toward implementation, a $250,000 grant was secured from the Coastal Impact Assistance Program to devise a master greenways and trails plan for Hancock County — connecting special and environmentally sensitive places together

Thanks to Ron Magee's leadership, Hancock County has a roadmap for success, and we are working together to make smart choices for smart growth. And, this is why we recognize him as one of Hancock County's Outstanding Citizens.

But, he says it was 'Camille" that brought him here. He was only one step away from his own dealership when he received the call from his father-in-law. He needed Charlie's help to rebuild the family business on the Coast.

In 1972, his dream of owning his own dealership became reality. Charlie Henderson Ford has been serving the Mississippi Gulf Coast for more than 30 years. When he first started the business, he did it all. Today. the business is run by his youngest son Joe.

The business has grown to a new facility with 32 employees. Employees are active in the United Way and the company supports little leagues and other community programs. Joe says his dad is a fantastic father, always there for him. As partners, they can butt headsand they stand behind each other. Charlie is still president of the company and spends his time managing his boat business - Atlantic Marine Brokers. He gives credit to his son for building the business in the new facility. But Joe says his dad is the one who deserves the credit.

Joe says a lot has changed since Charlie opened the dealership. Today, the product is better and the market is bigger. One thing that has not changed is their commonsense approach to doing business. They attribute their success to honoring their commitment to fairness, honesty and professionalism.

Home is Where the Heart is

o matter where you travel, even the most idyllic locale, coming home is always a vacation in itself.

Though you home can be a sanctuary and a place of comfort, you shouldn't be afraid to give its overall look a makeover. Your mustard yellow, 1970s-inspired kitchen appliances may bring back fond memories, but its time to think outside the box with home-improvement ideas to give your home the lift that it needs.

When you visualize a home improvement project, it doesn't have to mean tearing down walls and erecting a new structure in their wake. Often, the most subtle touches, like a new paint color or a few well-placed knickknacks can add that certain pizazz you're looking for. New fabrics, paint styles and innovative projects can all give your home a fresh look. And, if you feel like adding a new room or reroofing the entire house — go for it.

Spring is an ideal time to revamp an area of the home. Take advantage of the warmer weather, which often gives new lift to ideas that may have been dormant during the winter, to look for inspiration.

Browse antiques stores or page through the latest magazines to spark some new Spring home-improvement projects can be exciting, especially when they involve changing the decor of the home. Whether you plan to make a minor change, like hanging new drapes, or you have something extensive in mind, it is important to consider your health and safety in the process.

ELECTRICITY

- Disconnect any electrical equipment when it is not in use, even if it is for a short time.
- ... Switch off the power supply when decorating around switches or wall outlets and when cleaning them.

Save Time With Easy Pair

he walls and ceilings throughout a home usually form the backdrop for room furnishings, drapes and other decorations. Choosing a color can be hard enough, but choosing the right kind of paint can be just as important. Some people prefer a waterbased matte finish, others like something oil-based and glossy, while still some prefer a textured look. At a home center, it's easy to get overwhelmed by aisle after aisle of paints and equipment. Following are some hints for navigating your way through the paint options, courtesy of "Decorating Hints & Tips" (DK), by Julian Cassell and Peter Parham.

TYPES OF PAINT

No matter how many different varieties there are. they all fit into a number of broad categories. In general, water-based paints are the most popular because they're relatively easy to work with and dry quickly.

• Flat latex paint is water-based and has a dull, matte finish. It remains one of the more popular options because it's user-friendly easy to work with and low odor. Flat latex is suitable for all walls and ceilings, especially those freshly plastered, since it allows the plaster to dry out thorough-

- Vinyl flat latex is waterbased, but it's easier to clean than traditional flat latex paint; it dries to a wipeablematte finish. It's also more # durable — suitable for all walls — since the paint's matte properties help to conceal many surface imperfections.
- Vinyl gloss latex paint is water-based and quickdrying. It dries to high sheen. The gloss finish makes washing easy, and makes the paint a good choice for kitchens and bathrooms. It also can be used for all walls and ceilings.

- Store-brand flat latex is a paint created by most major paint stores and home-improvement stores a brand exclusive to that store. This paint is an ideal choice for achieving a traditional flat paint finish on all interior surfaces.
- Semigloss paint is oilbased and dries to a medium sheen. Although many brands are available, some have less of an odor, and are more user-friendly than others. This paint particularly is suitable for high-wear
- Quick-drying semigloss paint is a water-based acrylic type of semigloss. Typically a low-odor item, it also is washable and dries to a medium sheen. Some brands contain fungicides to fight mold and mildew buildup -- making it another good choice for kitchens and bathrooms.

• Textured paint is a water-based thick matte. It can be left plain or painted over, and can have a pattern superimposed. Textured paint is very durable and ideal for concealing surface imperfections and small cracks.

MEASURE TWICE

No matter which type of paint you choose, accuracy when estimating the amount you need will save you money and reduce waste. Calculate the surface areas of walls by multiplying the height of a room from the ceiling to the floor (or baseboard) by the entire length of the perimeter of the floor. Use the same dimensions to calculate the surface area of the ceiling. Do not subtract the areas of doors, windows and extras like molding, wall or window recesses, pillars and covered beams from your calculations. This way, you can be sure that you will have paint left over for any necessary touch ups later on. Also, remember that most walls will require two coats of paint.

SAFETY FIRST

As with any homeimprovement project, safety always should be the one of your first and foremost concerns. Here are some safety pointers to consider.

• Prevent injury — be sure to store painting materials and tools away from children and pets. Many products contain chemicals that may be harmful to the mericans love their decks. Whether it's a child's birthday party, a summer barbecue, a moment of quiet reflection or a Sunday brunch, they are, for many, their favorite outdoor living spaces. What, you may ask, could be controversial about

The most popular widely used decking material, pressure CCA treated lumber, will be voluntarily pulled from the decking market this year amid concerns that the arsenic used in its manufacturing poses a health risk. Many homeowners and contractors If you're seeking a safer decking alternativeoption, started to look at Combining the look of wood with the longevity of plastic, composite decking has emerged as the best alternative. Wood composites are safe, environmentally friendly, splinter free, moisture and insect resistant, easy to care for, and last several times longer than natural, pressure or copper treated lumber. When comparing the variety of composites available, however, what should a homeowner consider?

According to independent testing facilities, Mainebased CorrectDeck is the best performing composite on the market. The only composite made with UV stabilized polypropylene, the product is stronger; stiffer; lighter; more scratch resistant; and able to span longer distances and withstand higher temperatures.

Featuring an invisible fastening system, the decking goes down fast, saving homeowners time and

Another factor to consider is lifetime maintenance. according to contractor Rick Trottier, "CorrectDeck, for example, comes with a 25year warranty and you won't have to paint it or replace it for a very long time. The low cost of ownership makes it a great value."

"Many contractors are selecting select CorrectDeck for pools, hot tubs and boardwalks because the unique embossed wood grain surface not only looks better, it actually becomes less slippery when wet and is cooler underfoot than many decking materials,"says Correct Building Products President Martin Grohman.

The company also manufactures an attractive yet easy-to-install railing system called RapidRail from its blend of recovered hardwood fiber and plastic.

"The millwork style rail looks better than any other railing I've ever used and I've been in the business for more than 20 years,"says Trottier. "And it just takes a few screws and brackets and you're done."

Finally, look for a quality fade resistant wood composite product. Available in four great colors CorrectDeck has also made significant breakthroughs in color fastness. After 16 weeks, CorrectDeck will be completely weathered, retaining 94 percent of the original color and requiring no costly sealants, stains or paint.

Brick Offers a Durable, Attractive and Affordable Deck Alternative

Environmental Protection Agency's announcement regarding the phase-out of arsenic-laced, pressure-treated lumber, homeowners across the country are rethinking the safety of their existing wood decks and looking for alternatives for new construction.

So, what's the alternative? Many people building or rebuilding a deck initially consider using lumber treated with one of the nonarsenic-based pesticides being introduced into the market. A masonry material like brick, however, offers an option that not only solves the immediate safety and environmental issues, but provides a more attractive, durable and useful surface that will remain virtually maintenance-free for years to come. Brick, one of the "greenest" building materials that's been around for thousands of years, can be used to cover a masonry-constructed deck, creating a home or a value-added addition to any home.

Sam McGee, co-owner of North Carolina-based McGee Brothers Masonry, the largest masonry contracting company in the country, says a brick deck is easy and affordable to build and can solve many of the common homeowner complaints about wood decks. According to McGee, advantages of a brick-covered masonry deck include the following:

 Solid and dependable — A brick deck, like a brick house, is solid and dependable. No swaying in the breeze or shaking when the kids jump on a solidly constructed masonry deck.

 Totally inflammable – A brick deck takes the worry out of family barbecues or portable outdoor fireplaces. While fallen embers have been known to ignite wooden decks, a brick deck's flame resistance will protect both your deck and your home.

Today's Brick Patterns Ideal for Recreating Many Architectural Historic Period Homes

hether you're a purist looking to create your own English manor or just interested in hinting at Frank Lloyd Wright in your new home, a brick exterior can help you create many of today's most popular home styles.

Let's face it, the plethora of terms used by builders, architects and realtors can be confusing at best, especially when you consider that many homes built today are a mix of several different styles. The guide below should help you identify some of the most popular styles, including Tudor, English Country, Craftsman Bungalows and Prairie style homes, which were recently named the top home styles in About.com's Dream House survey. You'll also find a "brick pick" — a suggested brick type that lends itself well to the individual home style. Because brick is so diverse in its color, texture, mortar and pattern options, it is a top choice for all the architectural styles listed

Tudor and English Country — This cozy style is reminiscent of Medieval English cottages and manor homes and often include small, diamond-paned windows and exposed wood framing. Intricately patterned brickwork is also a hallmark of this period home. The Tudor was originally built from 1890 - 1940, but is seeing a resurgence as indicated by its No. 1 position on the Dream House survey. The English country or cottage style home is similar to the Tudor, though somewhat less grand and without the exposed beamwork. This picturesque style resembles a storybook cottage with cozy corners, quirky angles and other charming details.

Brick Pick: Antique-look

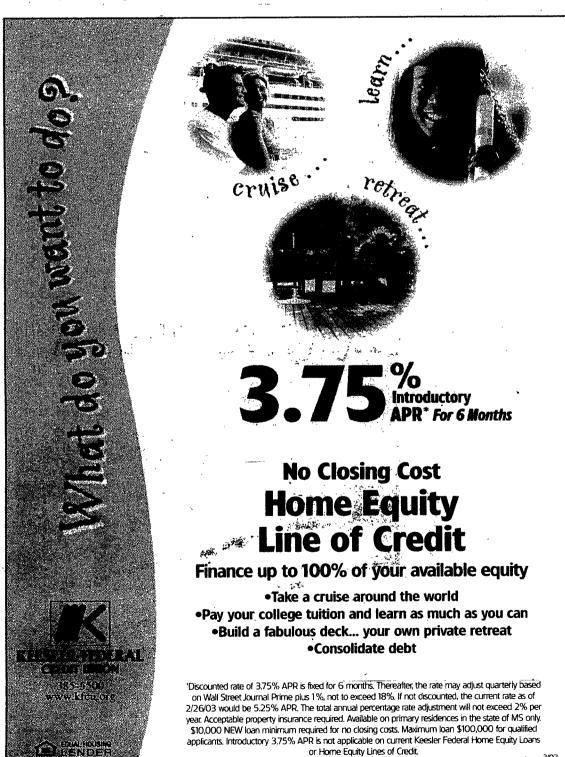

Brick Pick: Antique-look brick (also referred to as wood-mold, handmade or tumbled) in muted stone-like earth tones — buff, tan, charcoal gray or even a subdued red — with decorative patterning in accent areas.

Craftsman Bungalow - A true American original, these homey bungalows featuring low-pitched roofs and exposed rafters were all the rage at the beginning of the 20th century, starting in California and quickly spreading to the rest of the country. The style's popularity ended in the 1930s, but it is now making a comeback thanks, in part, to movements toward simpler living. Representing structural simplicity, efficient use of space and understated style, it was named the No. 2 style in the Dream House survey.

Brick Pick: Understated and utilitarian, dark brown, extruded brick (very linear and consistent from brick to brick) is a perfect choice for this style. Dark green trim will accentuate the Craftsman look.

Prairie — Frank Lloyd Wright pioneered this modern style in Chicago at the turn of the century. Lowpitched hip roofs make these ighting in kitchens and bathrooms has improved beyond Thomas Edison's wildest dreams — just as the rooms themselves have evolved dramatically. Contemporary kitchen designs feature expansive islands and wide-open spaces, while formerly humdrum bathrooms function as luxurious hideaways, complete with Roman tub, spa and a range of pampering fixtures.

Lighting Systems Offer New Design Options for Kitchens and Baths

The truth is, when it comes to fashion and function in today's kitchens and baths, you're limited only by your imagination.

As room designs evolve, the lighting industry is developing new technologies and products to respond to the ongoing changes in how people live and use these functional and comfortable spaces, from improved low voltage specialty systems to incandescent fixtures that use halogen or xenon bulbs, to new fluorescent sources that offer greatly improved CRI (color rendering) and CCT (color temperature).

So, how can you take advantage of these new lighting systems? Whether you're building a new home or simply want to add new life to an existing one, good lighting design is based on a system experts call "layering," which produces more interesting spaces by balancing the decorative and functional aspects of lighting.

CREATE THE PERFECT combination of illumination and ambiance with the latest lighting fixtures and designs for kitchens and baths.

An effective kitchen or bath lighting system will serve one of four major functions — and there is a host of innovative new products available for each of them:

• Ambient or General Lighting: Today's new fluorescent lighting offers excellent color rendering for general lighting in kitchens and baths. New designs offer fixtures that are beautifully encased in wood with the latest designer finishes and accents. Or, you can use recessed fixtures for general lighting, taking advantage of today's new compact fluorescent lamps.

Task Lighting: Low-voltage pendants or recessed low-voltage lighting over a kitchen island provide excellent task lighting for this busy workspace. Under the cabinets, try low-voltage linear lighting instead of fluorescent fixtures. For example, Ambiance® Lighting Systems by Sea Gull Lighting Products, Inc., offers an array of new designs, as well as a minirecessed fixture that can also be used as a shower light.

• Supplemental Task Lighting: Recessed low-voltage lighting is an ideal choice to provide supplemental task lighting to counterspace work areas in kitchens or baths

 Accent Lighting: Small, adjustable and directional track fixtures are useful for accenting countertop or cabinët displays. Or, you can highlight special items by displaying them in glassfront cabinets illuminated with innovative new fixtures, like the Disk Lighting System — also part of Sea Gull's Ambiance line. Another popular accent approach uses low-voltage linear lighting under the toe space of a bath cabinet for night lighting. Finally, you can add another layer of light altogether by lighting above your cabinets with low-voltage linear lighting.

Hammer Hints:

You can keep wood from splitting when hammering into it. Blunt the point of the nail with a hammer before hammering. With the nail tip blunted, the nail will crush the wood fibers rather than shear through them, and the wood won't split.

A hammer's claw can make a difference — the deeply curved radius of the claw on a common nail hammer is designed for maximum nail pulling leverage and for picking up and cradling 2 x 4 lumber. The ripping hammer sports a shallower curved claw for getting under and between lumber pieces.

home," says Bill Clossin, vice president of marketing at Harris Tarkett, a major manufacturer of hardwood floors. "The wide variety of species and colors available today allow wood to crossóver design and styling boundaries. And the good news for homeowners is that most of the floors shown in their magazines can be found or duplicated at their local floor covering retailer.'

Although the most popular wood flooring choice is oak in a natural color, there are a variety of other options that allow consumers to make a more personal design statement in their homes.

One recurring look in magazines is the use of wide plank floors in deep, rich, dark tones. The floors are often found in a number of homes within a single issue. "The advantage of floors in dark colors is that they are an excellent complement to traditional and contemporary interiors," Clossin says. "They provide a sophisticated background for neutral color palettes as well as bold, bright colors."

Consumers who want to duplicate these floors should consider Harris Tarkett's Grand Vistas Collection in Yuma Oak Sable in a 71/2inch width or Coach House Hickory in Leather, available in a 5-inch width.

Decorating magazines devoted to country living appeal to many homeowners whether they live in the country or the city.

"Many of these homes date back decades if not centuries, with floors as old as the original structures." Clossin says. "But duplicating the beauty and patina of timeworn floors is easier than ever." His company recently introduced Crossroads, a collection of floors that recreate the distressed look of aged lumber, adding instant heritage to any interior.

A number of periodicals focus on specific rooms in the home, like kitchens. One magazine recently showed several kitchens, each with its own distinct look and a hardwood floor.

The first one featured a small, contemporary space with a unique mix of materials that included limestone tiles, concrete countertops, stainless steel appliances, rich cherry cabinets and a light wood floor. To duplicate this look, homeowners might select maple, a wood that is naturally light and one of the most popular species after oak. Two options from the American Collection are Prescott Valley Maple Natural or Acadia Maple Natural.

Another kitchen featured a large, open plan that encompassed the kitchen, the breakfast area and the family room. The floor was oak in a honey tone.

While oak is a good choice for a kitchen, homeowners who want a more distinctive look might consider exotic species or floors with more grain character. Options include Glen Allen Ash Wheat from the Vintage Collection or Spotted Gum or Australian Cypress from the company's Passport: Australia collection.

"Thanks to today's tough factory finishes, hardwood has become the easy-care flooring choice for kitchens,' says Clossin. "There's a wood floor to complement every cabinet style, whether it's a popular cherry or a fresh, painted finish."

After collecting a portfolio of ideas, spend some time on the Web researching the various flooring options. Next, visit your local retailer to see actual samples and to review pricing and installation options. "The retailer's expert advice will help you determine which hardwood floor is right for your particular needs and budget," Clossin adds.

Easy Guide to Hardwood Constructions

hoosing a species and a color are two key considerations when shopping for a hardwood floor. Construction type is another. But no matter where you want to install a wood floor — whether in your new kitchen, the master bedroom or the basement — there's a construction that's just right for you.

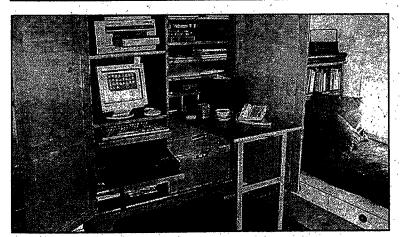

Solid plank and strip floors are made from solid pieces of lumber. They are available in a 3/4-inch thickness and random lengths, in a variety of species, colors and width options. Solid floors tend to expand and contract with temperature and humidity changes. Therefore, they can only be installed on or above grade and they must be nailed down. Engineered floors are made up of either three or five layers of wood, with the top and bottom layers a premium hardwood. This balanced, cross-ply construction adds strength and dimensional stability, which means these floors may be installed on, above and below grade.

Engineered floors are available in a wide variety of species, colors, widths and thicknesses, in random lengths. They may be glued down, stapled down or nailed down.

Longstrip floors are a type of engineered flooring with a five-ply construction. They are available in a variety of species and colors, in planks that measure 71/2 inches wide, 8 feet long and 9/16 inches thick. Longstrip floors may be glued down or stapled down, on, above and below grade. Additionally, they may be floated over almost any existing floor, including concrete and vinyl.

Each of these constructions offers excellent quality and value. In addition, most can be sanded and refinished at least one time or up to three times, depending upon the product. One company, Harris Tarkett, offers a refinish warranty on all of its solid, engineered and Longstrip products.

Ten Tips for Selecting Windows for a New Home

s impact-resistant glass worth the investment if I live on the outskirts of a coastal area? How much money can we save long term if I purchase windows meeting Energy Star® performance guidelines? What type of grids best complement our French colonial style of my home?

These are just some of the window questions facing consumers constructing a home. From decisions on the type of window framing materials to reviewing manufacturer warranties, homeowners have lots of research to do when deciding which windows to place in their homes. Since the lifespan of windows is generally 20 years, it's worth the investment of time and effort before the home is constructed to make certain you select windows you can happily live with for a long time.

"Too many consumers simply agree with whatever window recommendation their builder makes — and that's a mistake," says Christopher Burk of Simonton Windows®. Windows are a huge investment and a vital part of the construction of any home. Time and research is needed to match the characteristics of the chosen window with a homeowner's lifestyle, budget and comfort level.'

The experts at Simonton Windows offer the following tips for people selecting windows for new homes.

1. Analyze your lifestyle. If you want the easiest-tomaintain windows, then select vinyl. If you love the look of wood windows, but don't want the maintenance hassles of caring for them, research your options of having woodgrain laminate over vinyl: Also, consider tilt-in windows for easy cleaning of the glass.

Bayou .leweler & Watch Repair APRIL BIRTHSTONE: DIAMOND McLauren & Hwy 90, Waveland, MS

ASK YOURSELF some questions before you select windows like these for your home.

2. Research window manufacturers. Select reputable nationwide companies that offer solid, comprehensive warranties to provide you with long term peace-ofmind in case something ever happens to your windows. Make sure the company's warranty covers the frame, sash and insulating glass units of the window.

3. Educate yourself on energy efficiency. Select windows meeting Energy Star guidelines for where you live. Thicker glass, gas-filled units and double-paned windows will help cut down on heating and cooling costs from the first day you move into the home.

4. Consider glass options. Not all glass is the same. Just as you have choices on Low E or gas-filled glass to maximize energy efficiency in your home, you also have choices on the type of glass. Selections include clear, tempered, tinted (generally available in bronze or grey) or obscure glass.

5. Look at your geography. If you live in an area prone to severe storms, near a golf course or in a noisy or hightraffic area, then impactresistant glass is a smart investment. Windows with this glass are extremely difficult to penetrate, and the glass helps reduce noise infiltration by more than 40 percent. This glass is also a sensible way to enhance the security of a home and to reduce the penetration of damaging ultraviolet rays.

6. Review grid options. Many builders suggest standard white colonial grid patterns. However, window manufacturers offer everything from bevel-cut glass to brass to dark zinc as grid options. Also look at grid styles to complement your home. A perimeter grid style ideally suits an arts-andcrafts or prairie-style home, whereas a no-grid style might be best for capturing mountain or lakefront views.

7. Consider privacy issues. If your home is close to neighbors or if you want more privacy in the bathroom, ask your builder about acrylic block window inserts that obscure views into the home but allow in natural sunlight.

8. "Test drive" a window. Before you have an entire house filled with a specific window, go to a dealer showroom or model home to take a closer look at it. Make certain the unit opens and closes easily. See if the hardware is easy to operate and makes you feel secure. Look for windows that you can easily imagine yourself operating for the next 20 years.

9. Look at the construction of the windows. While you're "test driving" the window, look carefully at the construction. Quality windows should not appear sloppy or carelessly made. Select window manufacturers that show pride in the construction of the window and then you can proudly display the window in your own home.

10. Project into the future. Forty-five-year-old homeowners will be in their 60s before their windows need to be replaced. While it may be easy to open double-hung windows now, easy-to-operate crank casement windows may be gentler on the body as it ages.

Express Yourself With Decorative Glass

omeowners with solid entry doors are missing out on all the fun.
One of the hottest trends is to create entryways with decorative glass that truly reflects your personal tastes.

Do you like contemporary designs? If so, perhaps a combination of glass swirls, circles and bevels would set your home apart. Do you prefer more of a simple mission style? Then look for an inspired mixture of glass in a craftsman type of pattern to define your entryway.

"We've conducted interviews throughout the country where homeowners express interest in upgrading the look of their entryway to complement the home's exterior," says Angelo Marasco of ODL Inc. "Consumers understand the value of curb appeal. They appreciate that decorative glass in their entryways allows them a visual way to personalize the look of their home. Consumers also know they can add to both the day-to-day enjoyment of their homes and the eventual resale value with decorative glass."

In response to the consumer research, ODL has introduced a new selection of glass types, caming options and glass designs to meet the needs of homeowners. For doorlights and sidelights in entryways, the company now offers combinations of Thin Reed, Seedy, Glacier, Ripple, Alabaster, Slush and Vertigo glass with their existing options of Bevels, Muffle, Renaissance and Granite glasses.

Glass types can run from transparent, which provides maximum visibility and light flow, to obscure glass that protects homeowner privacy, says Marasco. "Combinations of these glasses create stunning entryways," he adds.

To unite the glass pieces together, ODL offers caming options of black chrome, satin nickel, chrome, brass, patina and nickel.

Caming can be selected to match or contrast door hardware and exterior lightEscapades and Echelon (traditional designs).

Do's and Don'ts for a User-Friendly Home

Almost every home can be more user-friendly than it is. If you're buying, building or remodeling a house, here are seven easy Do's and Don'ts from Myron Ferguson, home expert and author of "Build It Right! What to Look for in Your New Home" (Home User Press), that can make your home a better place to live.

Don't place a refrigerator in a corner where it prevents a door from being fully opened. Do install light switches where people would expect to find them.

Don't lay carpeting under an eating area where it may fall prey to messy food spills and stains. Do be sure your bathroom is large enough so that you don't have to slide in beside the toilet bowl to close the door. Do make sure there is enough clearance between a kitchen table and a swinging outside door. Do have a clothing rod over or next to the dryer to help keep laundry wrinkle-free.

Don't install doors too close to each other so that you have to shut one to open another.

ich mahogany. Deep walnut. Warm oak. Soothing pine. Homeowners who crave the look of wood, but hate the hassles of warping, rotting and insect infestations, have come to appreciate the option of woodgrain urethane millwork from Style Solutions. Offered in a variety of moulding profiles, louvers and decorative millwork, the woodgrain stainable products allow homeowners to easily gain the look of wood inside and outside their homes while eliminating the hassles of maintaining real wood.

The woodgrain is castmoulded in the product to give each piece a consistent grain pattern. When the moulding lengths are installed end-to-end, there's always a perfect match.

The woodgrain pieces from Style Solutions come with a neutral color barrier coating that accepts both non-penetrating stains and paints in any color. Unlike wood, the pieces do not splinter or warp, and there is no sanding, priming or sealing needed.

"I'm always asked about innovative products on my show, and this one is tops on my list," says Don Zeman, host of the nationally syndicated home improvement radio show. Homefront with Don Zeman. This is an easy do-it-yourself project that's ideal for homeowners in any geographic area.

We've found that these urethane products have no reaction to high temperatures or humidity levels, nor to freezing temperatures or salt air. This makes the mill-

"You immediately see how the stain transforms the woodgrain in the millwork and you can totally control the depth of the shading. Whether you're adding an oak finish to a functional louver for the home's exterior or staining interior crown moulding in deep walnut hues, you totally control this easy process."

Did You Know ... ?

A septic tank is well-suited to break down human waste, and a well-designed, properly used and maintained system is one of the best choices for waste disposal in certain areas of the country. However, there are many potential problems with septic tanks. One problem is that people put things down the drain that can damage the system. Even simple food items like too much grease, cooking oil or fat may greatly reduce the efficiency of the system.

Household cleaners, paints and other toxins are also toxic to the bacteria which make the system operate properly. Also, putting an excess load on the system when more people are in the house than the system is designed for can result in materials moving through the system too quickly to be decomposed and contamination problems may result.

far-flung places but simply haven't the time or opportunity, you can create an exotic ambiance in your home through your choice of furnishings and accessories.

According to the design experts at Stroheim & Romann, a high-end resource for decorative fabrics, wallpapers and trimmings, adding elements reminiscent of faraway locales can transform a room from bland to sublime. Here are some pointers to help get you started:

If you long for the romance of the mysterious East, opt for paisleys. These richly patterned fabrics, which originated in Kashmir and Persia hundreds of years ago, provide an opulent look. Stroheim & Romann's Connoisseur Paisleys Collection includes a range of these motifs in various scales and colorations.

• For a truly exotic room, don't limit the number of patterns to just one or two. Layers of pattern upon pattern convey a richer look. The f you dream of traveling to room shown here features seven different patterns.

• A mix of accessories and occasional furniture from different corners of the globe adds to an interesting look. Choose pieces inspired by China, India, Morocco, Africa, South America or other distant lands for a sophisticated, global look.

• It's often the details that make a room truly special. There is a range of options in trimmings - tassels, fringe, beads, braids and cording that add a luxe look to any setting. Also play up patterned fabrics by combining them with solid and textured ones for dramatic contrast bandings and accents.

 When combining several different patterns in the same room, a good rule of thumb is to keep most in the same color palette, varying elegant fabrics that feature the texture and scale of patterns. Here, almost everything is in a red and gold palette, with striking accents of black. Although many patterns are combined, the overall effect is subtle and harmonious.
